

TELLS AMERICA'S NEED IN FUTURE

Must Adhere To Ideals of Past Declares

ASSAILS PROFITEERS

Greed Is Placed in Same Class
With Radicalism—Must

America of the future, guided by the same ideals and traditions of the America of the past, will continue to hold her same position of greatness among the nations of the world. That was the optimistic prophecy made by Harry H. Rogers in an address on "Hindrances to the Future" at the regular noon luncheon meeting of the Tulsa City club yesterday.

In his opening remarks, which followed his introduction by Julius Ralph Campbell, newly elected president of the club, Mr. Rogers expressed the belief that the state of Oklahoma has attained her present position because the cities of Oklahoma are all willing to contribute to the welfare of the other cities of the state, and thereby aid in the development of the state as a whole.

"Tulsa," he said, "is not merely interested in the working out of her own local development, but has the wealth, intelligence and disposition to take her place in working out the program of the entire country."

Will Remain Supreme.
Just as America in the past has achieved her wonderful development as a nation, so will she keep her place supreme in the future. She will continue to develop by the application of the same theories and policies of government that have proved so successful in the past.

"Certainly she will not permit foreign people and foreign influence to interfere with our affairs and foster on us something that has never succeeded anywhere," he said.

Capital and labor, the speaker said, must keep to the broad common ground in the future, each class realizing the justice to which the other is entitled. "Every man must learn that his first allegiance is to his country and that no man can live in this country in happiness and prosperity if he holds a stronger allegiance to any organization than he does to the government."

Religion, which was the force that caused many of the early settlers to brave the dangers of the wilderness in America, is one of the most important factors in the future development of the country, according to Mr. Rogers. He told of the various religious drives that are being made over the land, and declared that the financiers of the nation must realize that the people must be kept close to religion if a stable business prosperity is to be had.

"Religion today is for the red-blooded man as well as for the women, children and decrepit old men," he said.

Need of Education.
Next in importance in the life of the nation, Mr. Rogers discussed education. Not only must the children be educated, but schools and extension work must be provided for the education of the adult population.

"If you want to make Americans, teach the adults the wonderful advantages and possibilities of America. When the people of the backwoods and the city slums find out what this great country really is, and learn the privileges that it offers, then they will love it."

Limitation of immigration and exportation of all radicals, "reds" and I. W. W. was forcefully urged by the speaker. Especially did he denounce the radical press, demanding that the large number of foreign language journals in the country be suppressed and that the radical publications that are being shipped into the country be kept out.

"There are 68 papers printed in the United States that advocate armed revolution against the government. There is but one way to treat them. I say out with them all. That with the street corner speakers who do not love the country. Free speech should be used against the maintenance of the government of the country for its degradation and ruin."

Rogers declared that the first step in the extermination of the aliens had been taken when Tulsa through her character of citizenship offered in advance to the government the money necessary for sending them out of the country. That he had no objection to the alien that should pay for the entire country.

Just as surely as you hope to get away with the reds, the I. W. W. and other radicals, you will have to bid the country of the profiteers. The master said in a vigorous arraignment of the man who exports unreasonably profits from his warren.

"If there is any difference in the red and the profiteer, I believe that I would prefer to give the hand of my affection to the red."

Assails Profiteers.
Denouncing the rent profiteer, Rogers said that when a man perverted an industry he was impossible for them to live on their wages that the matter should be the concern of the county assessor, and that the officials should look into the situation and use their authority to effect a remedy.

"Regarding the next president of the United States, I decided that whether he be a republican or a democrat he will be a man in whose heart the ideals and traditions of the American people hold first place. He will have the highest regard for all of the ideals and achievements of the nation in the past and he will be loved by all of the people because he loves his country."

Discussing briefly the future of Tulsa, Mr. Rogers mentioned the numerous churches that would be constructed within the coming year. He also mentioned the possibility of Tulsa receiving the large Methodist university that is to be located in this part of the south. "Kendall college," he stated, "could be made one of the finest educational institutions in the middle west if the business men of the city would cooperate to give it larger facilities."

Favors Salaries.
Teachers must be given increased salaries in the future. According to the speaker they were entitled to the same scale of wages as were received by bankers and presidents of all companies and other business houses. "Hotel facilities must be improved within the coming year," he declared, stating that thousands of people had failed to come to Tulsa because of the lack of hotel accommodations.

"Tulsa's greatest need is to become a great city, well known in 1929, she will get the good water for which she voted bonds. At least we hope to have it here by that time and if there are any who are still opposed to the water they need not drink it."

Local Doctor Says Car Was Damaged By Negligence of Agent.

Asking judgment for $244 and was filed in district court yesterday by Dr. Ralph Smith against the Tulsa Gasoline company, the plaintiff claiming his automobile was damaged to that extent when struck by an automobile driven by an agent of the defendant company.

Shorthorn Breeders Indorse the Live Stock Show Now Being Formed Here.

The temporary organization of the Tulsa County Shorthorn Breeders' association, formed more than a year ago, was made permanent as a gathering of shorthorn cattle breeders held in the county agent's office at the county courthouse yesterday afternoon.

The national and the shrine colors will be displayed in the elaborate decorations and a course of light refreshments will be served during the evening.

WOULD SHOOT "REDS"

That Is What General Hoffman Would Do With Followers of Emma Goldman.

"Allen enemies, 'reds' J. W. W. and other radicals should not be deported. They should be taken out and shot."

At least that is the way Brig. Gen. Roy Hoffman of Oklahoma City feels about it.

Speaking to a gathering of more than 200 members of Joe Carson post of the American Legion last night on the subject of Americanism, Hoffman bitterly denounced the element that was attempting to undermine the principles of the government and declared that while we must use some means to get rid of them, that he could not approve of their going out of the country alive.

"We have no place for them here, but neither have we the right to ship this human driftwood to some other country where they will endanger the government there just as they are doing here." He declared that since the ship on which Emma Goldman and her ilk took their forced departure was only equipped with life boats sufficient to save the members of the crew, he sincerely hoped that the boat would sink at sea.

John Rogers, post commander, presided over the meeting and entertainment was furnished for the former soldiers by Harry Nowlan, vocalist, and Harry Miller, reader. Cigars and cigarettes composed the refreshments.

Where Quality Meets Value

The railroads don't overbuild their coal cars. They are producing weight carriers which combine strength and lightness to insure a long-lived unit with transporting economy. Motor Trucks should be judged on the same basis—on their efficiency and on transportation costs per ton mile.

Bethlehem Motor Trucks are neither underbuilt to meet a price nor overbuilt to justify a price. The one dominant thought behind them is the building of a motor truck that represents a dependable means of transportation at the lowest transportation costs. Buy your Motor Truck on Facts.

The Franklin Car gives more than double the tire mileage delivered by the average car, nearly three times that guaranteed by tire makers. Yet, the greatly reduced expense resulting from 12,500 miles to the set of tires is only one important consideration to Franklin owners. What counts as much with them is the practical elimination of tire trouble, freedom from tire anxiety and relief from a heavy investment in spare tires.
